was the week of the Long Branch horse show, which started Thursday and ended this afternoon. The show brought together the largest social gathering of the year. There was not much display of dress, and a large percentage of the men attending were in service uniforms; but nevertheless the show had its old time gayety.

Dances were held in conjunction with the show at the hotels and there was also much formal entertaining in the villas which border the ocean in this vinearly 200 women attended.
